Me? A Caregiver?

By Mary Beth Harris

Directed by Becca Wolff

Mary Beth shares her experience in caregiving through an edgy, hilarious, poignant and honest one woman show.

Mary Beth Harris is an award winning author, consultant and speaker. Her memoir, Me? A Caregiver? is the recipient of two awards: Today's Caregiver Friendly Award and the Living Now Book Award.

Becca Wolff's recent projects include No Static At All (winner, Outstanding Solo Performance NYC and Hollywood Fringe Festivals) and The Last Days of Mary Stuart (best of LA 2013, LA Weekly) and the upcoming Hookman.

Produced by the Cherry Center, Me? A Caregiver? explores the challenges of caregiving through both laughter and tears.

Ellen Harris — an independent woman, passionate artist and devoted mother — vowed never to be a burden to her children. But when rheumatoid arthritis severely crippled Ellen's hands and feet, her youngest daughter, Mary Beth, left her dream job as an ambitious young Hollywood producer to become her mother's caregiver.

In this darkly comic one-woman show, Mary Beth teaches us the challenging and creative aspects of being a caregiver.
